Hair-raising

WHILE on the subject of hair, Melbourne Victory captain Kevin Muscat seems to have performed the sort of follicular miracle to have Advanced Hair technicians fretting for their livelihood. As our pictures of Muscat show, all you need to do to grow back your hair is star in an ad for your own testimonial game (which could also be used as an ad for Musky The Musical, whenever Eddie Perfect gets around to writing it). Pictured is Muscat, arms raised and slumped to his knees as the final whistle sounds in the 2007 A-League grand final against Adelaide. The testimonial advert uses the same image of Muscat – identical except for the sponsors' names on his shirt and shorts. Yet somehow nothing like the Victory skipper who lifted another title in February 2009, sporting the shaven-headed look he has favoured since midway through 2008. Having a game thrown on at Melbourne's newest stadium to celebrate your career must be an enormous honour. Almost as exciting as having your hair back.
